Intern (m/f)

Munich

Siemens Management Consulting (SMC) is the top management strategy consultancy of Siemens.

At SMC you can expect a challenging work environment with a high level of responsibility in the top-management strategy consultancy of Siemens from day one.

As an Intern you will immediately have responsibility. Together with your project team you will develop international business strategies to solve complex twenty-first century challenges in the fields of electrification, automation and digitalization.

Your mentor will support your personal development and you will have direct contact with clients.

Your responsibilities:

- Analyzing markets and competitors
- Helping to develop business strategies and plans for our clients
- Preparing expert interviews and workshops
- Supporting the development of presentations for top-management.

Your qualifications:

- You have completed at least four semesters of your university studies with outstanding results, or are currently completing a Gap Year or earning a second academic qualification (master's/PhD)
- Relevant international experience of at least six months (during your studies or previous internships)
- Relevant practical experience in a strategy consultancy and/or in a renowned industrial enterprise or a start-up
- Excellent analytical and conceptual skills
- Distinctive entrepreneurial mindset
- Highly developed communication skills in German and English
- Team player with strong interpersonal skills

At the end of your internship you will receive detailed feedback on your performance. As an intern with exceptional performance, we will accept you into our intern retention program "SMC. Next Generation." Stay in contact with us and benefit from a large range of offers such as training opportunities or our mentoring program.

If you are ranked one of our best performers during your internship and you are about to finish your studies within 18 months after ending your SMC internship, we will make you a direct offer to join us as a Consultant.

Work with us as part of our global team to secure the technological leadership of Siemens. Let's shape the society of tomorrow together. Apply now.
