ABOUT THE MASTER'S THESIS TOPIC

Would you like to work on one of the topics published by the chair in the list of possible thesis topics for your thesis?

You can find the topics on the chair's website under the "Theses" section.

Yes

No

IF YOU WOULD LIKE TO WORK ON A PUBLISHED TOPIC:

Which topic area published on the chair's website would you like to dedicate your master's thesis to? Which specific aspect of the topic area are you interested in? Please describe the practical and academic relevance of the topic. If applicable, name theoretical approaches or models that are relevant to the topic.

IF YOU WOULD LIKE TO WORK ON A SELF-SELECTED TOPIC:

Please briefly state a proposed topic you would like to address in your master's thesis. Explain how this fits into the research areas of the Chair of Human Resources, Management & Organisation. Please describe the practical and academic relevance of the topic. If applicable, name theoretical approaches or models that are relevant to the topic.

You can access the research areas in the document that lists the topics for theses published by the chair. This can be found on the chair's website under the "Theses" section.

Regardless of whether you would like to work on a self-selected or published topic, please briefly state your preference for a quantitative (e.g., surveys), qualitative (e.g., interviews), or mixed-methods study design.

ABOUT YOUR RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Briefly describe the topic and methodology of your bachelor's thesis.

The description of your bachelor's thesis is intended to help the chair's team assess what research experience you have already gained.
