

Research Projects at the KU

Many researchers at the KU are already working on various different aspects of flight and migration for publications and academic conferences, and as part of third-party research projects. The Center for Flight and Migration coordinates these activities, groups them by subject, and publicizes them.

Information on a selection of projects with a strong focus on elements of flight and migration is available on the following pages.